

LIVESTOCK CONTRACTORS ASSOCIATION

The Livestock Contractors Association (LCA) is a not for profit industry association, established to further the interests of Livestock Contractors, Producers and the livestock industries as a whole. LCA President Jamie Rowe has been working tirelessly over the past few years alongside the executive committee and our current members to not only promote the LCA, but also to forge ongoing partnerships with other associations, organisation's, other bodies and companies from within the agricultural sector.

We believe promotion of the livestock industry is vital for our member's futures, and strive to be at the forefront of modern and evolving technology and practices.

The LCA covers all areas of animal related activities including stock contractors, dipping, mulesing, preg scanning and testing, animal husbandry and much more.

The LCA is an exciting association that enables communication and networking between members Australia wide, and provides contacts to relevant organisations, government bodies and animal welfare groups. We facilitate further knowledge and information for our members by providing skills workshops, participation at field days, updates on new developments within the livestock industry, newsletters and meetings with fellow contractors and scientific advisors.

We understand the Livestock industry comprises a broad range of disciplines and businesses, and we aim to represent our members in such a way that reflects these diverse needs. Our Association promotes the use of skilled contractors, and consults with state and federal government agencies, animal welfare organisations and Livestock Owner Associations to ensure our members needs and concerns are considered during the development of animal handling practices such as surgical procedures and chemical use.

The LCA is a progressive and forward thinking association, and we welcome contractors from across the country to have a voice in developing the course of their future business and industry. The LCA Annual General Meeting will be held on the 21st May 2016 in Adelaide, South Australia and we invite all current members to attend.
